How to Recognize and Treat Toxic Tooth Infection Before Visiting the Dentist...

By bestfolkmedicine · 02/12/2018 · 2 min read

An abscessed tooth is a toxic tooth infection that develops in an area between the tooth and the gum or at the tooth's root. This infection may happen as a result of poor hygiene, excessive consumption of sugary foods, untreated tooth decay, and gingivitis.

The bad oral bacteria go inside the tooth through cavities or cracks into the tip of the root. When not adequately addressed, this infection may increase inflammation and pain and even spread towards the tooth's bone and trigger more serious issues.

What Are the Major Symptoms of Abscessed Teeth?

- Discomfort and ache while chewing
- Bad breath
- Swollen cheeks
- Sore, painful, and red gums
- Inability to swallow properly
- Sharp toothache
- Fever
- Swollen lymph nodes under the jaw

If you happen to experience any of above-mentioned symptoms, it is important to consult your dentist for diagnosis and treatment. In the meantime, to alleviate the unpleasant symptoms, try out below-shown 4 DIY remedies made with 100 percent natural ingredients.

4 Homemade Cures for Abscessed Tooth

- Oil pulling

This well-known natural cure is an excellent method to treat oral health problems as it can lower the bad bacteria and toxins and thus, enhance your health. Here is how to do it:

A tsp of virgin coconut oil

Warm water

How to do it: Swish the oil through the whole mouth for 15 minutes. Then, spit out the content and rinse the mouth well with warm water. Repeat the procedure twice per day, always on an empty stomach, for a period of 30 days.
