Below, check out some other ways in which you can learn that this person is the best one for you!

How to Know He/She Is the Right One?

- They forgive you

Forgiving your partner and not assigning blame is a major factor for long-term, successful relationships.

When partners can't take responsibility or they don't have a good perception of their partner after these experiences, the relationship won't be able to improve.

The right one will always show kindness, forgiveness, and empathy for your ups and downs.

- No need for a mask

With the right one, you'll feel free since the moment you start your relationship. They will look at all you do with enjoyment and gladly hear you opening up your soul.

They can understand and will protect and comfort you all the time.

- They try to understand you and your actions

A person who's your soul mate won't judge you when you're doing something wrong, but they'll want to help you understand what you did and how it impacted them.

They will give you space to talk and pay attention to your emotions and discuss things.
